SECTION-A

(Reading Comprehension)

1. Read the following passage. Make notes (5 marks), with a summary (4 marks) with a suitable title (1 mark). (10)

Fear and its companion pain are two of the most useful things that man and animals possess, if they are properly used. If fire did not hurt when it burnt, children would play with it until their hands were burnt away. Similarly, if pain existed but fear did not, child would burn itself again and again, because fear would not warn it to keep away from the fire that had burnt it before. A really fearless soldier and some do exist --- is not a good soldier, because he is soon killed, and a dead soldier is of no use to his army. Fear and pain are therefore two guards without which men and animals might die out. If, for example, you never go out of your house because of the danger of being knocked down and killed in the street by a car, you are letting fear rule you too much. Even in your house you are not absolutely safe; an aeroplane may crash on your house or you may get cancer.

The important thing is not to let fear rule you, but instead to use fear as your servant and guide. Fear will warn you of dangers, and then you have to decide that there is nothing that you can do to avoid the danger. You cannot prevent an aeroplane crashing into your house and you may not want to go and live in a desert where there are no aeroplanes. In this case, fear has given you its warning; you have examined it and decided on your course of action.

Fear is one of the seven universal emotions experienced by everyone around the world. It arises with the threat of harm, either physical, emotional or psychological, real or imagined. While traditionally considered a 'negative' emotion, fear actually serves an important role in keeping us safe as it mobilizes us to cope with potential danger. It can, however, also keep us feeling trapped and prevent us from doing things we would like to. It is amusing that some people find fear nearly intolerable, and avoid the emotion at any cost, while others experience pleasure from its manifestation (e.g. watching a horror film interestingly).

2. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow: (1×10=10)

India is faced with a number of problems. The problem of unemployment among the educated youth is the most challenging one. It has created a lot of unrest among the educated people. One can see long queues of unemployed young men at Employment Exchanges. The main cause of unemployment among the educated is the defective system of education. Our system of education is not linked with our social needs. Our universities are producing graduates like pins coming out of the factory. And then these graduates join the ever-increasing army of the unemployed.

The government finds it impossible to provide jobs to all the youth who come out of schools, colleges and universities. This doesn't mean that the schools, colleges and universities should be shut down. It would be an act of profanity to do that. The temples of learning should never be closed for anybody. Rather they should be spread all over the country. The solution lies in the youth changing their attitude. The educated youth should not run after government jobs. They can make their mark in the private sector also. With the coming of multinational companies, their chances of showing their talent have increased all the more. But one thing has to be kept in mind always and that is in these days of global competition, there is no room for mediocres. Only those who outshine in their respective fields will be able to reach their desired goal. Others will love to seek refuge in self employment.

Self-employment too, is not a mean thing. Many self-employed youth who have strong willpower have attained wonderful success in their enterprises and they do a great service to the nation also. They help to solve the problems of unemployment. Thus instead of running after government jobs and wasting the precious years of their life, the educated youth should at once set about starting some enterprise of their own.

There is another dimension to the problem of unemployment. It is our fast-growing population. No doubt, a large number of jobs have been created since Independence, but the population has multiplied so much that the jobs have fallen short of the growing number of people. Naturally this has led to unemployment.
